
DESIRE Abandoned BABY TWO ADOPTION BIDS RECEIVED

Westerly, R. I., Sept. 28—While police checked finger prints taken from a milk bottle, several offers of adoption of the three-week-old baby girl, found abandoned in a car here, were submitted today.

With the exception of finger prints, police were blocked in their efforts to locate the mother or person who left the infant, clad lightly, during Friday night's chill, in the rear seat of a parked automobile, apparently to die.

The baby, bright and healthy, is the size of the twenty-four-remains of Crystal de Chidlow, which has received the offer of adoption.

The R. I. P. D. officials will not receive any of the offers, however, for a few days, pending the report of police on the identity of the baby's parents.

Offering to a certain orphanage, the abandoned infant was found several hours after dark in one bedroom of a hotel in Westerly, situated on the main highway.

Officer Must Tell About That Finger
Westerly, Sept. 28—Inspector Harold P. King, who has been the target of a search since Sept. 17, when he was arrested from duty because of an official finger print taken at the Lancaster Hotel, is now in the hands of the police.

PRIMER FOR HARVARD STUDENTS by ANN MARSTERS Read, Freshmen, And Be Wise Get Educated Easier Way

So now we come to Lesson No. 2 in Ann Marsters' Primer for Harvard Students, or the facts of life for Young Centabrigians.

By what might be called a coincidence, Lesson No. 1 was published yesterday in the Boston Sunday Advertiser and Lesson No. 3 will be in tomorrow's Boston Evening American—and so on until Harvard leads are educated to an astonishing degree.

However, do you know what a Harvard student should look for on leaving the Crawford House? Ann Marsters' Primer whispers!

How about the Kerry Corner Boys and what the squash-men are wearing? Ho, for Ann Marsters' Primer and the ruffling leaves!

Give out, Harvardians—and read . . . !

(Copyright, 1936, by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser)

LESSON 2
WE HOPE that by this time you have all fully digested yesterday's lesson. And we hope you remember that it's a good idea to make friends with Charlie Apted, head of the Harvard Yard police.

He is really much more understanding than he looks—and he doesn't think his influence is confined only to the Yard. If he's in the mood for it, he can do a nice job of fixing things up with the Boston and Cambridge police. (Not that we're anticipating trouble for you—but you never can tell—what with some of you so far away from home.)

It's inevitable that some day you'll hear Apted's softly spoken, but curt order:

"Break it up, boys. Break it up."

Better mind him at such times—because he means it.

Don't go out of your way looking for trouble with the Kerry Corner boys. (That's on the corner of Banks and Surrey streets.) Any upper classman will tell you what happened to Tommy Armstrong at Kerry's Corner one Harvard day.

IT'S PARTICULARLY wise to avoid that corner when you're dressed for playing squash. For some reason, your squash outfit strikes the Kerry boys very funny—in mean way. But don't let it hurt your feelings—maybe they're just jealous.

DON'T take it too seriously when you hear that there's been a new deal in Harvard football. You'll probably find out that Coach Harlow has "gone Harvard" instead of making Harvard football go Harlow.

Don't let your nice new Harvard enthusiasm run away with you and plunge all your allowance on the Crimson against the Blue. Remember—that bad boy, Larry Kelley, will still be playing left end. And Charlie Ewart, Clint Frank and Al Hissberg will be in the Yale backfield. (I forget who was in the backfield for Harvard—and you never can tell who will be.)

When you become familiar with Harvard traditions, you will want to visit Locke-Ober's Cafe in Winter Place. Perhaps your father used to go to Locke's—and his father before him. Be sure to take along your pipe—because that's part of the tradition. And be prepared for an evening's deep discussion about life—and things—in your best Freshman manner.

BY ALL means go to Professor Copeland's meetings, if you get invited. "Copey," who is now retired and living at 5 Concord avenue, has been holding meetings at his home for the students once a week for the past few years. He's delightful to meet. Ask one of the Freshmen deans about an invitation.

The teas at President Conant's home (every second Sunday) are quite enjoyable. They're about the only chance you'll have of meeting the president of your college on a social basis.

TRADITION will also tell you that you should visit Durgin and Park's in the market district. And Jake Wirth's, too. Before prohibition, when you were almost old enough to want to be a fireman instead of a Harvard man, the students were very well known at Jake Wirth's.

When you're feeling like roughing it a bit, you'll probably go to the Crawford House or the Silver Dollar Bar or the Tent. If it's rather late when you come out of the Crawford House—watch out for the sailors.

If you're the type who must shout with exuberance at the movies—do you shouting at the University Theater. They don't mind it there. In fact, they like it. And you'll probably make the oft-repeated "humorous" remark, some day, that goes like this:

Q. "What are you majoring in?" A. "Oh—I'm majoring in U. T." (Do you get it?)

IF YOU see a man walking about the Square with a boat model in his arms, don't stop and admire it—unless you really want to buy a boat. It was designed with your mantelpiece in mind—and it's clever work, at that.

You've probably already been how-do-you-do'd by Max Keizer as you've gone in and out of the Union. Good old Max Keizer with his inevitable cap, his friendly nod to students, and his shrewd eye for business for his second-hand clothing store. Perhaps he'll look your suit over and make you a quiet offer.

Hurry up and apply for your football tickets. The freshmen get the short end of this matter anyway, and pretty soon there'll be nothing left but "one seat behind a column."

BE VERY docile when you go into the Harvard Gardens. There's someone there named Nick who won't stand for very much nonsense.

You can save fifty cents by buying a "food ticket" at the Wursthause. For a $5.00 ticket you may have $5.50 worth of hamburgers and beer and such things.

Don't get pugnacious with the Harvard Square boys in the Georgian. They stand a much better chance of winning than you do—because there are more of them there at the same time. Besides—they seem to spring up from nowhere, once anything begins to happen.

(Lesson Number Three in Ann Marsters' Primer for Harvard Students will be published in tomorrow's Boston Evening American and lessons will be published daily thereafter until the course is completed.)

OLYMPIC Star to Wed BANKER COUPLE LONG ENGAGED

Worcester, Sept. 28—Blonde and attractive Albina Osipowich, 1928 Olympic winner of the 100-metre free-style for women, will be married early in October to a Chicago banker, it was announced by her parents here today.

The Olympic record-breaking champion has been secretly engaged to Harrison Van Aken, Jr., of Lyons, Kansas, an executive of the Continental Bank & Trust Company, of Chicago, for the past six months.

After the ceremony and a honeymoon in the West, the couple will bring their home to Chicago.

In winning the Amsterdam 100-meter dash in the record-shattering time of 1:11.11, the Worcester girl finished her way to international fame and brought the first Olympic medal for women to New England.

As a result of her Olympic triumph Worcester was named as an honor personage at that city was also here, welcomed before her arrival, and the Worcester Woman's Club voted to give her a scholarship to Pembroke school, the women's division of Brown University.

It was while a student at Pembroke that she became acquainted with young Van Aken, announced and the couple fell in love.

After graduating with honors from Pembroke, Miss Osipowich was appointed Rhode Island director of the National Youth Administration, a position she still holds.

Jesse Owens Aids G. O. P. at Rally

By L. F. CONANT, JR.
The Republican campaign got off to a flying start for a week of intensive rallies today as thousands prepared to welcome Jesse Owens, Olympic running champion and standard-bearer for his race in the interests of Governor Landon.

A series of townships, including one for the academy of Governor Boston, will precede the evening rally scheduled for 8 o'clock in Tremont Temple with members of the state ticket standing speaking honors with the triple champion.

An unusual feature of the day is the presentation of a memorial to the Olympic games in Athens 40 years ago, by Attorney Henry J. Clark, of Boston, a champion of that day.

Presentation will be made at the headquarters of the League of Women for Community Service, 215 Massachusetts avenue, where a large gathering of schoolboys will be given the opportunity of seeing the Olympic champion in person.

HAILED BY HAIGIS
Hailing Owens as a "fine American sportsman," John W. Haigis, Republican gubernatorial nominee, declared that he was a real inspiration to the youth of the country.

"He is an illustration of the mental and physical achievements of his race," he added.

Previously, Owens was to be met at the South Station at 1:45 by a delegation headed by Co-Chairman John W. Schenck and Joseph R. Mitchell, state director of the auxiliary of the state committee.

Also on the Republican rally schedule for tonight were meetings in East Milton and Swampscott, both begin at 8 o'clock.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Republican senatorial nominee, will speak at the East Milton rally, to be held in Ellsworth Hall, before leaving for the Owens meeting at Tremont Temple.

Speakers at the Swampscott rally at the Town Hall, under the auspices of the local Women's Repub-

"Nothing at all, Timmy, except that Senator Walsh is very busy outside the state at the present time."

That Last Week
Soothingly, Timmy handed out

"Oh, Senator, there are five weeks yet, Walsh will be back."

"Yes, Timmy, that's what the State Democratic Committee claims, but they made another claim that doesn't stand close inspection."

"What was that, poddner—I mean to say, Senator?"

"That they were all for one, and one for all. Give me some beer to booties in."

ROOSEVELT SET FOR 5 SPEECHES

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 28 (INS)—President Roosevelt, scheduled in his Hyde Park study today and devoted the major portion of his time to dictating notes and rough drafts of five speeches he will deliver in the next four days.

Two at least come in the category of major campaign addresses, one tomorrow night in Syracuse before the New York state Democratic convention, and a second on the evening of October 1 before a Democratic rally in Pittsburgh.

Heading out from Hyde Park tomorrow morning, the President planned to tour four eastern states in the four days. All are listed as the currently doubtful columns: New York, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Curley Claims State Surplus

By WILLIAM C. CONWAY

"We've shown the Republican party how to run the state. They never knew before," Governor Curley told an overflow crowd at the forum in Washington street this noon as he reviewed his administration.

"Is Curley a waster of public money?" This is a question frequently asked at the Roosevelt forums now being held throughout the state by the eldest son of the President, the Governor said.

"The answer," that despite the fact that he took over liabilities of nearly $2,000,000 and ended the first year with an unexpended surplus of $1,000,000.

"We will end this year with a surplus of $2,000,000, although there are 15,000 more employees on the state payroll than in previous years. The state has the high credit standing in its history. In 10 years, there will be no debt obligations incurred by Curley outstanding."

LASHES OUT AT G. O. P.
Governor Curley lashed out at the Republican party, charging failure to provide for the inmates.

"If the truth were known, every month for the past five years some one of the inmates in our state institutions has been killed to death because of conditions which prevail in our insane institutions," he said.

"If it's the last thing I do on this earth, I am going to humanize the insane institutions of this state," Governor Curley said.

Governor Curley urged his listeners to join in the registration drive which party leaders are starting in Boston on Wednesday. Democratic leaders have set 200,000 new voters as their goal in the registration drive.

FLEA FOR HARMONY
Dr. Joseph S. Scammon, Democratic nominee for state secretary, shared the forum platform today with Governor Curley.

In his address today, Dr. Scammon made a plea for harmony among the Democrats and urged his opponent, Secretary of State Frederic Cook, has served for 14 years and has received "over $100,000 in salary."

"We should not perpetuate men in public office," Dr. Scammon said.

Betty Alden on 'Beacon Hill'

Deborah Johnson Bride Today
Of Dr. Richard E. Alt

By BETTY ALDEN

DEBORAH JOHNSON has a flair for doing things a little bit differently . . .

Instead of crossing the Atlantic on a conventional liner for a year of European studying and polishing off, as a great many girls do, she took a round-the-world cruise on the 80-foot schooner, Yankee, and visited many of the remote, romantic corners of the globe . . .

Even at her wedding Deborah demonstrated her ability to be a bit unusual . . . The traditional church, and even the bridal veil, were dispensed with . . . and the ceremony was performed in a glorified barn on the estate of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Bethell, Oldfields in South Essex . . .

Though this was unusual enough, it was not quite as rural as it sounds . . . several years ago the barn was converted into a sort of guest house and clubroom for the Bethells and their friends . . . no prancing horses or lowing cattle had to temporarily vacate their home in order that the ceremony might take place.

The wedding, which was attended by the immediate families and a few intimate friends, took place this afternoon . . . Deborah, who is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Bethell, Oldfields in South Essex . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Bethell were the only attendants . . . Mrs. Bethell, the former Elizabeth Johnson, wears a gown of burnt orange moire, made exactly like the bride's gown . . . (She carried a bouquet of gerbera . . .)

Following a wedding trip through New England, Dr. Alt and his bride will live in Beverly . . .

The bride is a graduate of Miss Madeira's School in Washington, D. C., the University of Vermont in 1928, and Simmons College in 1929 . . . Dr. Alt graduated in 1927 from Harvard and also received his medical degree from Harvard . . . He has been a member of the resident staff of the Massachusetts General and Peter Bent Brigham hospitals and was formerly an instructor at the Harvard Medical School . . . For the past two years he has been resident surgeon at the Beverly Hospital and is presently associated with Dr. Johnson, father of the bride . . .

Betsy McKean Plans Debut on Saturday

BETSY MCKEAN'S COMING OUT party next Saturday evening is not going to go down in history as a stereotyped affair, if all we hear about it comes true . . . a large tent is going to be erected on the grounds of the McKean estate on the North Shore, and this will house a regular midway with all sorts of games of chance, fortune telling and a tin-type man . . . Betsy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean . . . her grandmother, Mrs. M. Greene Houghton, is giving a dinner for her before the dance . . .

Bob Montgomery is still causing a stir at society's turf events . . . A few weeks ago he was the center of the North Shore to palpitating when he appeared at the Myopia Hunt Club's horse show in Hamilton . . . More recently he has been attending the International Polo Matches between the Argentine riders and the Green Guard, for the "Cup of the Americas" . . . Following the opening match Mr. and Mrs. Cary Dunham, 3d, of Lawrence, Long Island, gave a cocktail party in honor of Bob and Mrs. Montgomery and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Cushman, Jr. . . . The Montgomerys were the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Everett C. Cady . . . The Cady's, the Cushman's and the Montgomerys all own farms quite near each other at Towners, N. Y. . . .

Merry Party at Wayland

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT CANFIELD of Cambridge, and the latter's brother and sister-in-law, the Archibalds of New York, were among the young marrieds who helped Dorothy Stone and E. Pelham Stevens celebrate the night before their wedding . . . Following dinner at the Stones' home in Wayland, the whole bridal party and a few extra friends, drifted over to Ten Acres in Wayland to dance and drink a few more toasts on the bridal couple . . . Lee Marston, in a peach more gown with a deeper shade of peach velvet sash, was one of the prettiest girls in the group . . . In another party George Shaw, 2d, entertained his cousin, Seals Chamberlain, Jr., of Woodside, California, who is visiting the Shaws for a few days . . .

The William R. Longs and their lively family are moving back to town from Chatham next Monday . . . their winter home is on Marlborough street . . .

MR. AND MRS. HARTLEY A. HURLBERT of Hyde Park announce the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Churchill Hurlbert, to Russell Emerson Chase of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Chase of Providence.

The ceremony will be held at the wedding ceremony in the First Congregational Church in Hyde Park last Saturday evening, September 26. A reception in the chapel followed.

The bride wore the traditional ivory gown with long train and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Theresa Dodge of Hyde Park, the maid of honor, wore a gown of green chiffon velvet and carried tulle roses.

The six bridesmaids all wore gowns of rust colored chiffon velvet made like that of the maid of honor. They are Mrs. William L. Harlow, Miss Jane Bryant, Miss Barbara Bradley, Miss Rose Keen, all of Hyde Park, Mrs. Earle Carleton of Katmah, New York, and Miss Phyllis Rankin of Lowell.

Dr. Edgar Warren of New York, who was a classmate of the bridegroom at Yale, was the best man. His position as president of the bride was read usher, and assisting him were, William L. Harlow of Hyde Park, Curtis Cummings of Kintehook, N. Y., Wilmer Wheat of New York, and Walter M. Wheat of New York, and Marion Hixson.

Mr. Chase graduated from Yale with the class of 1932. Following their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Chase will make their home in New York.

MERCHANTS HEAR 'NEW DEAL' ASSAULT

The administration was bitterly attacked today for its "interference in special groups against the interest of the public," its activities under the National Recovery Administration, its interference in business, and its failure to aid American business in international relations. Speakers at the two-day Boston conference on distribution at Hotel Statler made the attacks.

Miss Jean 600 merchants . . .

The three speakers who assailed the New Deal were Richard Wald, economist, mediator, editor, who spoke on "International Relations and American Business"; Gilbert H. Managosa, a member of the New York stock exchange, who spoke on "The New Deal"; and the Robinson-Patman Act, and Paul H. Ryan, of Columbia University School of Business, who spoke on "National Legislative Trends—The Effect on Business and Consumption."

Referring to present administration during the present administration, Nystrom asserted:

"The current trend is to attempt to find ways and means to permit the restriction of the competition and to permit price fixing in the interests of special groups as against the interests of the consuming public. What the outcome of this trend will be in the courts cannot now be foreseen."

With the passing of the NIRA, efforts of business groups to secure monopolistic and other special privileges has not come to an end and there is now the need more than ever for representation of the consumer viewpoint.

"It is still a young country. It has wonderful possibilities for its people, if they are not spoiled by doing nothing."

Attacking the Robinson-Patman Act, Managosa said:

"A speculation far greater than that of the Robinson-Patman Act carries the peril not only of criminal prosecution and injunction suits by the Attorney-General, but also the inevitable great financial damage to injured third-party damages by injured consumers from a seller who withholds some price differential or some service previously rendered by itself."

"The act is comparatively simple, but it is of immense importance, and it is of the first importance to the consumer viewpoint."

SHOULD THIS HUSBAND TAKE BACK ERRING WIFE?

He Wants Answer To Query

Sam Dodsworth Says:

I never had much time for love, romance and that sort of thing. But I was in Zenith, where Fran and I spent most of our lives. A man was as good as the work he did on better.

Almost 20 years ago I started to make automobile kind of put in on the ground floor. My company prospered, grew with the times. At 60 I found myself with all the money any man ever might have.

Finally, after my daughter and a mighty good looking one too—tip and gets married about this time.

OFF FOR EUROPE

Then Fran and I got started, went to New York, put up at one of the big hotels till we got our bearings. And when the Queen Mary put out for Europe, we were on it.

Somehow that big boat and I were off together. If ever there was a lost soul it was I.

I kind of drifted away to one of those beach chairs on the deck, took things up and down. When Edith Cortright came along and parked near me, we all of a sudden fell to talking just as though we knew each other for years.

When we got to Europe I was dead set on seeing London, but Fran, who was all for running up to Paris.

While I was tramping around taking in those sites I'd seen millions of times on postcards, Fran ran into a noble fellow, a Kurt Von Oberdorff, with a string of Austrian, according to Edith, way back to Julius Caesar.

This Oberdorff made a big noise over Fran.

I was fed up and went back to Zenith, swearing I'd carry on alone without Fran. Edith had a baby, a right smart youngster if I do say so. And that kind of helped put me back on my bearings.

FRAN ON EDITH

When I got to Zenith, I was doing right for Fran, having her with that foreign nut. Finally I set out for Europe. I found Fran at Lake Geneva, fairly bubbling over with her usual optimism. With her was the Count still, but he was not coming.

Yes, Fran would drop the young foreigner and make a man of me. And Edith, who really loves me, would also come.

That is my system. Two women and the woman I married. They fell over her for a strange boy, and she popped from me, and the other woman, who loves me for what I am.

Should I take Fran back?

Well, shall I go to Edith and happiness?

Solve Family Problem And Win Award

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Sinclair Lewis called her Fran. In his famous novel, "Dodsworth," they lived—the whose heart thrilled to the rest of life and he, Sam, her aggressively "settled" husband.

Fran Dodsworth is more than an imaginative character in the pages of a book or in the scenes of the truly great motion picture opening October 2 at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters.

She is a woman. She lives. She breathes. She thinks my thoughts and your thoughts. And if, by chance, she does some things that neither you nor I would ever do, it may be that Fran is more daring than we, more reckless in abandoning herself to the challenge of life.

Fran, too, is a real life man. You've seen him looking his quiet way at work, making a few nice remarks in the club, playing golf or attending church.

He knows Sam, as you know Fran. They are real people—everyday life people.

Sinclair Lewis, writing about them, ended his story as HE would end it. I might end it another way. And YOU might end it better than either of us.

WRITE YOUR SOLUTION

That is just what I want you to do. Write Fran and Sam a solution as YOU would solve it if it were you. Read what Sam says. Read also what Fran says. Then write your solution.

Make your solution simple and brief—not more than 100 words. Forget high-sounding literary words. Don't bother about fancy literary pieces of empty paper to set you apart.

Write Sam and Fran's problem. Solve it as YOU would solve it. Write it as you would solve it. Write it as you would solve it.

Should Sam Take Fran Back?

OR SHOULD SAM GO TO EDITH CORTRIGHT, HIS NEW LOVE?

Answer that question as best you can. Put the answer on the piece of paper you find and mail it to me in care of Mrs. BEATRICE FAIRFAX, BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, 5 WINTHROP SQUARE, BOSTON.

Write straight from the heart. Do not be afraid to write. If you do, I'll see you in Nassau.

She Will Leave New Love

Fran Dodsworth Says:

In Zenith, where I was born, girls were expected to marry, and a "settled" man was considered quite as good as a romantic one.

We girls, like girls everywhere, wanted love and affection, prayed for it, looked with hope on every strange boy that came to town.

At 18 I married Sam. He was a "good catch," though not a very loving one. Edith was born and I put my heart and soul into her. The years slipped by and almost before I knew it I was 28.

Perhaps I had been always crying out against the stagnation of Zenith, deep down in my heart. But the night Edith came to me and said I was going to be married, I suddenly realized how useless and hopeless my life had been.

FACE AT LAST

I was still young, still pretty and still as much for the fiber things of the world as ever. Edith—the baby on my arm—was going to be married. Somehow I was glad. I was a free soul at last! Free to go away! Free to taste life!

Sam and I went to Europe. It was rather a lonely honeymoon. We were to do the things we had always hoped to do, but never found time.

There I met the Baron Kurt Von Oberdorff, the most wonderful boy in all the world. There I was years older.

It was sweet, considerate, romantic. He was the man of my girlhood dreams. Together, we went to lovely Vienna, and Danube, beautiful and blue.

In Italy—mummy, laughing and of eternal love—we pledged our truth anew. Sam I forgot, not intentionally but naturally.

Edith, too, passed from my mind. Kurt was my all—the boy I always wanted to have, the man my heart had cried to all these years.

And then, suddenly—cruselly—must come the news. Edith had a baby. I, Fran, was a landlubber.

My MY PROBLEM

Yes, I shall return to Sam. I'll be his if he wants me. I'll save the sweet, tender memory I must always cherish of Kurt.

I'll go back to Zenith if Sam will let me. I'll take up again my old life, be the respectable, droll and colorless wife.

Do this for Sam, Edith and Edith's baby. I have drunk deeply of life. I am satisfied.

But Sam—poor steady, sensitive, stubborn Sam—hesitates. Partly, I think, because he can't bring himself to forgive me wholly and completely. Partly, also, because Edith Cortright has given him the love and affection I failed to give when he needed it so much.

Should Sam take me back? Or should Sam go to Edith and the happiness he thinks she can give him?

Find Woman's Body In Framingham Reservoir

Floating only a few feet from shore, the body of an unidentified woman, about 60 years old and well dressed, was found today in Basin No. 3 of the Metropolitan Reservoir in Framingham.

The spot where the woman's body was discovered by a Framingham man and his wife is directly across from where the body of a woman was found in the reservoir on March 23, 1935.

Police Chief William W. Hulsebrook had noticed something floating in the basin as he and his wife drove past early today on their way to Worcester. When they returned shortly after 10 o'clock the object was still there and the couple, getting out to investigate, discovered that it was the body of a woman.

The body was found floating with arms outstretched. Police Chief William W. Hulsebrook was notified and the body was removed and sent to the Crockton funeral parlor in Framingham.

The woman was five feet four inches tall, weighed 125 pounds, had gray hair and wore a blue crepe dress, fresh colored stockings, black patent leather pumps and around her neck a black scarf with white polka dots.

The were gold-rimmed eyeglasses and on her dress was a name brand tag.
